Chris Baumgartner brings a wide variety of litigation experience to Dufford & Brown. He began his career primarily in the areas of medical malpractice and personal injury litigation. Chris subsequently expanded his practice into the commercial arena and now handles a diverse range of civil litigation in addition to advising clients on general business matters.

For Chris, few things compare to the satisfaction that comes with achieving a great result for a client, whether it be obtaining a substantial recovery on their behalf or eliminating a potential liability. Chris often finds it more rewarding to assist a client in resolving problems without resorting to formal litigation, or better yet, advising a client as to how to avoid potential problems altogether.
